Mine Workers League Picnic Will Take Place Wednesday At Olympia

Nevada City and Grass Valley business houses will close at noon Wednesday for the annual Nevada County Mine Workers Protective League picnic, which will be held at Lake Olympia.

Except for the Lava Cap Mines, all gold properties in the district where the league is recognized as bargaining agent will suspend operations.

The league committee in charge of the picnic, the proceeds of which are used for the benefit of widows and orphans of deceased Nevada County miners, announce they have arranged one of the best entertainment programs in the history of the picnic.

During the afternoon there will be boxing and wrestling. The boxing matches will be led off with Dave Tobiassen and Dave Kistle, both of this city, tangling. Flash Edwards will then battle Bud Tobiassen, 145 pound intercolegiate national champion and the boxing will come to a close with a match between Ted Blum of Chicago Park and George Tracy of Palo Alto.

Wrestling matches will include matches between Carl Cicogni and Red McDaniels, James Dale and John Nemanic, Pat Sutherland and Frank Wall.

There will be all kinds of sports events for men, women ,and children. Nevada City and Grass Valley merchants have donated all sorts of merchandise to be awarded to the contest winners.

There will be concessions at the picnic grounds, including Bingo games. More than 1,000 pasties are to be baked for the picnic.

The picnic will come to a close with a dance in the evening at the Lake Olympia pavilion.

Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

About that kindergarten proposal, some ideas present themselves as thoughtful material for this column. In the first place, let's be more thoughtful about it and less argumentative. It is always the part of good citizenship, it may be safely asserted, to consider both sides of the matter disinterestedly, that is dispassionatin the light of the community's welfare.

One of the things that are retrogressive rather than progressive in the smaller cities, is the tendency to choose sides on a public issue of this kind. Leaders then appear on either side and there's a battle royal in which tongues wag and arguments fly like brickbats, and everybody who doesn't agree with one, is an old so-and-so.

We have heard some of these arguments against the kindergarten idea, which seem to us a bit on the silly side. One was that mothers of young children, were anxious to foist their children on the tax payers, via a new school building and a teacher and a lot of equipment, so that they could play bridge. Well, in the first place, kindergartens are only established for the morning hours, and anyone with bird wits knows that young mothers have no time to play bridge in the morning.

On the other hand, against the idea, we note that quite a number of the people whose children have grown up, or who have no children at all, are lined up against the kindergarten idea, and their protests are especially painful to hear. They are afraid of the increased taxes. As a rule the younger families whose children are of kindergarten age, usually are not so much concerned about taxes, in fact, at that stage in their lives the majority have little property on which to pay taxes.

We do think the tax argument has merit, especially at this time. Nevada City has just completed building handsome modern schools on borrowed money, and must now pay for them over a long term of years. We believe that the tax rate for schools just about equals the tax for all the other governmental functions. Of course, taxes for a new kindergarten, would only amount to a straw, so to speak but is was the last straw that broke the camel's back so that every camel still has curvature of the spine.

We have listened to a great deal of discussion regarding the merits of kindergartens as pre-school institutions. Those who have sent their todlers to kindergarten, have each one of them a different reaction to report. Now as a matter of fact, kindergartens, just as are schools and colleges are good when the teacher is good and no good when the teacher is no good. But just now it is not so much a question of whether a kindergarten is desirable or not, as it is whether in any case we can afford it.

Airplane Crashes On Ranch Field

An airplane belonging to Mrs. Darrell DeNeal crashed to the ground on the Marks Ranch, wrecking the plane. Two passengers, who were prospective buyers for the ship, escaped injury.

An inspector of the Civil Aeronautics Authority is of the opinion the crash was caused by sweating gas.

The Vanderford Brothers of Gridley were in the airplane at the time of the crash, trying it out with the view of purchasing it from Mrs. DeNeal.

Placque Marking Henness Pass Route Will Be Dedicated Tomorrow

Sierra Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West of Alleghany, will dedicate a placque tomorrow marking the Henness Pass Road, one of the most historic routes of the state.

Grand President Clarice Cook of the Native Daughters will officiate over the dedication exercises, which will be held at 2 p. m.

The Native Daughters have secured permission from the Tahoe National Forest to pipe water from a spring to a drinking fountain, which will be erected near the marker.

Henness Pass was the way thousands travelled to Virginia City when news of the rich strike there reached the ears of California miners. During the past two years the Tahoe Forest Service has maintained the road, which has been little travelled in recent years.

Hot Plates Episode Shows Vigilance Of Local Police

Strange things can happen in police work.

This was demonstrated here when the police officers picked up Francis Buster of the Murchie Road.

Buster was driving a car which carried stolen license plates.

Buster is a good law abiding citizen and was incensed at being picked up as a criminal suspect.

Nevertheless, the license plates on Buster's car were on the local police department's "hot" list, so Buster was taken by Officer Lynn Davies to police headquarters for questioning by Davies and Officers Al Sommers and Cliff Bonivert.

It developed from Buster's story and niformation from the California Highway Patrol that Buster had actually purchased the license plates himself.

Buster reported to the highway patrol the license plates were stolen from him before he had a chance to place them on his au-

But, soon after the purchase, tomobile.

The highway patrol sent out word to all officers in the state to be on the lookout for an automobile with those plates.

Not long after, however, Buster found the plates behind the back seat of his car and placed them into use. He failed to report this to the highway patrol and the plates were still on the "hot" list.

So that's why Buster was picked up. Officers Davies, following the practice of all local policemen to be on the alert for stolen automobiles, spotted the car as a "hot" one.

The episode at least proved the vigilance of the local police department.

City Council Asks Stop Of Water Use During 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

The city council, at its meeting Thursday night, took cognizance of the practice of residents of the city in using water for irrigating during the prohibited hours of 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. and issued a warning in an effort to stop it.

The police department was ordered to be on the lookout for violators of the rule.

Residents of Nevada Street complained of roily water. It was learned the dirty water was due to the NID's turning in a heavy supply of water into the ditches, and loose dirt was washed from the sides of the bank. The water was expected to clear in a few days.

The Nevada City Chamber of Commerce's request the city do something about improving the Lava Cap Road was taken under consideration. The councilmen are to view the road and decide what will be done.

The request for a wage increase for city street employees failed to materialize.

CAR, MONEY, GIRL DISAPPEAR; WARRANT ISSUED FOR GIRL

A warrant for the arrest of Peggy Bader, 18, on a charge of grand theft was issued here by Justice of the Peace George Gilderseeve after the girl reportedly stole a car at the Salmon Mine and departed for parts unknown.

An all point bulletin to apprehend Miss Bader was sent out on the teletype by the shefiff's office here.

Miss Bader, according to a story told the sheriff's office, had been visiting with Mrs. Bess Stowell. She disappeared at the same time as the car, which was owned by Mrs. Josephine Carriero of San Francisco. The car was stolen from Mrs. Carriero's son, Everett Gaylord, who is making poles for Jack Norton near the Salmon Mine.

A small amount of money from Gaylord's purse was also missing.

Rex Christie, 24, Denies Implication In Local Burglary

A SUSPECT IN THE RECENT ROBBERY AT THE HOME OF MR. AND MRS. ERNEST BEUES ON THE MURCHIE ROAD IS HELD IN THE COUNTY JAIL HERE. UNDERSHERIFF WILLIAM D. WOODS SAID HE WILL BE CHARGED WITH ARMED ROBBERY.

The man, Rex Douglas Christie, 24, was positively identified by both Mr. and Mrs. Beues as one of three men who entered their home at 3 a. m. and, at the point of a gun, forced them to reveal the hiding place of $100 in cash. The Beues just a few hours before had returned from a trip to Colorado.

Christie denies he was implicated in the robbery. Undersheriff Wiliam D. Woods spent all day yesterday in the search for the others believed connected with the burgary. He took Joseph Wells into custody for questioning but it is not believed he had anything to do with the crime.

Christie was taken into custody by Deputy Sheriff Ronald Fraser at the New Deal in Grass Valley following a telephone call from Mrs. Beues that one of the three men who committed the robbery was in that place.

Beues reported to the sheriff's office the shoes that Christie was wearing at the time of his arrest belonged to him (Beues.)

In addition to the money, the men who invaded the Beues home stole a bottle of whisky and some jewelry.

At the time of the robbery the Reues' reported they heard a pounding on their door. Beues went to the door and a masked man covered him with a gun and said:

"This is hold-up—stick 'em up."

The two men that came to the door demanded money. Beues gave them $5 but they were not satisfied and threatening his life, forced him to reveal where he had the $100 hidden. After taking the money, whisky, jewelry and miscellaneous articles they left and were driven away by a third man who remained in the car.

Josher Causes Early Morning Excitement

Some one's idea of a joke routed nearly all of the residents of the city from their beds at 3 a. m. yesterday.

The fire department received a telephone call that a lumber yard was on fire. Almost simultaneous the fire signal in front of the Harris Drug Store was pulled.

The fire bell, the sirens blowing and the noise of the fire truck as it sped down Broad Street and up Boulder to the Nevada County Lumber Company excited everyone. All the firemen dressed hurriedly. Private citizens, always intrigued by a fire, donned their clothing and left their homes to witness the blaze.

But there was no fire. After learning that the Nevada County Lumber Company yards were not ablaze the fire engines and firemen went out to the Diamond Match yards but all was serene there also. So the firemen and fire fans returned to their beds, plenty ired at someone who thought he was pulling a fine joke.

TWO INJURED IN 1,000 FOOT HIGHWAY PLUNGE

Arthur P. Greiner, 52, and wife, Iris May Greiner, 34, of San Francisco, were seriously injured Saturday night when their automobile plunged off the Downieville Highway 1,000 feet into the South Yuba River canyon The accident occurred just before the descent of the grade.

Greiner suffered head cuts and possible chest injuries and his wife received a fractured right leg.

Both Greiner and his wife were thrown from their car 300 feet down the embankment as it rolled end over end.

Elmer Newman of Mountain View carried the couple, one at a time, up the almost perpendicular mountain side.

Greiner is an accountant for the NYK line in San Francisco. Both were taken to the Jones Memorial Hospital in Grass Valley.

GRASS VALLEY YOUTH HELD ON PETTY THEFT CHARGE

HYDRAULIC ASSOCIATION TO RESTORE INTEREST IN BEAR RIVER DEBRIS DAM PROJECT

The California Hydraulic Mining Association held its regular monthly meeting here Saturday afternoon at the National Hotel.

The principal topic of discussion was the building of the Bear River Debris Dam. George Hallock of Alleghany was appointed chairman of a committee to revive interest among business interests and the general public in the dam's contruction.

It was reported at the meeting the $2,000,000 in federal funds needed for the dam is likely to be granted but it would have a better chance of being appropriated if more interest was shown in the project.

It is hoped the funds will be included in the rivers and harbors bill which is now being drawn up. A site has already been approved by army engineers.

E. A. Bailey of the Bureau of Reclamation, Department of Interior, was present at the meeting. He said he is conducting a survey on the Yuba River watersheds with the idea of possibly constructing dams in addition to the Upper Narrows for the purpose of water conservation .Bailey's news was heard with interest by the hydraulic miners.

The next meeting of the organization will be held on Sunday, September 14th, at Dutch Flat. It will be a picnic affair and it is hoped arrangements can be made to escort those attending through the P. G. & E. power tunnel under construction there.

Vice President Fred Harvey of Galt presided at the meeting in the absence of President Cal Haffey.

AN OLD, OLD STORY

Nevada Countyans who use the San Mateo or Dumbarton bridges when going or coming from the peninsula drive through the small but thriving city of Hayward, which fronts on the San Francisco bay.

In following the orange line through this community they have probably given little thought to the lives of the citizens there. To them it is another of the many traffic annoyances which slow down their journey and keep them from traveling at the faster rate they prefer.

Out of Hayward comes one of those tragedies which a small community every now and then will produce, a tragedy involving four youths, the eldest of whom is 16 and the youngest 13. These four are accused of planning and carrying out a grocery store holdup during which the owner was shot to death and his wife clubbed with the butt of a rifle.

Their crime committed, the four youths scattered. Two fled to Utah, to be picked up by the police of Odgen as suspicious characters. or possible runaways. One went to the Russian river with his mother on a vacation. The fourth remained at home in Hayward. The two detained in Utah were the ones who gave the first inkling that the youths were involved in a holdup and murder. From their stories the Hayward police were able to gain sufficient information to warrant the arrest of the others.

Already the quartet are being called members of a youthful bandit gang. The sheriff describes them the "the coolest juvenile scoundrels I've ever seen." Hayward, usually peaceful and quiet, is wildly excited over this sensational episode and startled to learn that three of the young men have previous crime records.

The two arrested in Utah are Everett Washburn, 16, and Walter Lee, 15. Lee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lee of Oakland and began his criminal career by robbing a store at the age of nine.

He continued getting into trouble until he landed in the Forestville home, where he met Washburn.

Washburn is the son of Roy Washburn, also of Oakland. The father was arrested in 1925 for failure to provide and escaped jail. The mother. Mrs. Minnie Washburn, was murdered in Reedley in 1930. Farmed out for foster care. young Washburn broke into the Hayward high school and followed this with a restaurant robbery. A stolen car made him a juvenile court ward.

Lee and Washburn ran away from the Forestville home on July 27. They camped near Hayward and persuaded George Lingenfeiter and Warren Brill, the other two youths, to supply them with a car and guns so they could rob the grocery store of William Hanna. Hanna they shot in the back, Mrs. Hanna they clubbed with a rifle when she shouted for help.

Warren Brill had figured in other crimes with Washburn. Lingenfelter, a studious-looking youngster, seems to be the least criminally inclined of the quartet, but under the law is equally guilty with the others.

Here again are youths who considered themselves tough guys and who thought they were bigger than the law. Now they are in the worst possible trouble into which they can get. Each town has them, and the larger the city the greater the proportion. They aren't alone to blame. Their parents and their communities are also responsible. The preventive for crime is to see to it that young boys don't get the opportunity to engage in it. That is the duty of the parents and the juvenile authorities.

Hayward will blame the youngsters—and primarily they are to blame— but Hayward might ask itself what steps are being taken in that city to prevent a future repetition of this story, which is an old, old one and often repeated.

TAX ON UNIONS

Authoritative quarters in Washington announces that building trades unions have collected twenty million dollars in fees from temporary workers on public projects since the start of the defense period. "Having obtained closed shop conditions on such projects", says the report, "labor bosses are exacting their pound of flesh from every worker on the job."

In the aviation centers of California. Texas and Florida, federal agencies are busy investigating the alleged "union profiteering," and surveying the feasibility of a tax control on the lucrative business of dues-gathering. Such a tax, it is disclosed, would appripriate a share for the government of the profits of unions, just as the income of individuals and businesses are now taxed. It would, as well, throw open union books to law enforcement agencies, just as the books of other businesses are open, to detect and check any irregularities.

There have been drastic statutes for many years clamping down on racketeering and profiteering in business and industry; and there are the high-bracket surtaxes to confiscate excess profits. Unions today have become Big Business, and it is only reasonable to assume they should be subject to the same regulations and restrictions as other Big Business.

Fishing To Be Poor Until September

Reports from fishermen are that angling will be poor until about the middle of September and in October.

Little luck is being had in the lakes. Fly fishing in the early evenings on the streams is good, however. fishermen report.

Game Warden Earl Hiscox said he expects fishing to pick up in about a month and be god for the remainder of the season.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder disconnectedly,
My thoughts are oft awry,
There are so many questions now,
Who, when and where and why.
And what to do and what to think,
I'm almost at distraction's brink.

I wonder at the wide diffusion of present day thought, the profusion of thought provoking subjects, the confusion attendant upon their discussion and analysis, and the dangerous thought transfusions wherewith the Nazis seek to inoculate our minds with the same deadly poison which has destroyed their own.

Think straight—think things through to their logical conclusions? That is excellent advice, but not always easy to follow especially when the cacophony of contending voices is bethumping us from every point of the compass. Then too, logic is not an infallible guide; it may be used by clever logicians to "intrench prejudice," or to prove quite conclusively that black is white. Truly the task of the thinker is a hard one, but there is much thinking to be done, so you and I should do our share to the best of our ability.

Strangely enough, the subject of appeasement still agitates some of our best minds. Appeasement is a demonstrated failure—a costly one at that, despite this fact. the high pitched voices of its proponents are still heard in the land. Curious isn't it?

Those of us who are considering the subject of appeasement, will do well to remebber, that the only way to appease a master gangster, is to submit to his enforced "protection," pay tribute, retroactive to the first day of the last world war and stand ready to pungle up your last thin dime whenever he sees fit to raise the ante.

I wonder how many American ladies are preparing to hoard silk stockings. Don't do it girls. Manufacturers of dainty feminine doodads are exceedingly versatile and quicker than scat, they will be fabricating perfectly adorable things of synthetic silk, cotton or both. The feminne world will be quite mad about them. Everybody will wear them. Then what? Your silk stockings will be as old fashioned as great, great grand mother's pantalettes. If you wear them in public, your friends will smile pityingly and call you "quaint." Don't hoard girls. Let your motto be, "off with the old and on with the new." There isn't a soul in the entire planetary system who enjoys being called "quaint."

The war between Hitler and Stalin is still in progress. I'm haunted daily by wistful memories of the gingham dog and the calico cat. You remember them, they ate each other up.

Each task which human hands have wrought
Was actuated by a thought.
The graceful bridge across the stream
Was once the figment of a dream.
The vaulted dome and smiling tower
Prove that ideas have life and power—
All things contrived for pride or gain,
Lived first in some ingenuous brain.

WOOL CROP IN CALIFORNIA TO BREAK RECORD

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 11.—(UP)—California sheep will produce a total of 28,598,000 pounds of wool during 1941, the largest wool crop on record, the California cooperative crop reporting service predicted today.

The predicted production, which includes fall shearings still to be completed, compared with 27,230,000 pounds last year and 25,869,000 in 1939. The fall shearing was estimated to produce 3,844,000 pounds compared with 3,636,000 in 1940.

For California, the average weight per fleece was set at 7.4 pounds and the number of sheep to be shorn during the year at 3,888,000.

It was estimated that 399,941,000 pounds of wool would be shorn throughout the nation, the highest production on record. The 11 western states had an estimated production of 195,121,000 pounds.

LAND NEAR POWERHOUSES, DAMS, IN FOREST AREA CLOSED TO PUBLIC

Supervisor Guerdon Ellis of the Tahoe National Forest has announced the closure of all lands near powerhouses, dams, transmission lines and other vital points to the general public.

The closures were authorized by the Secretary of Agriculture as a measure for the prevention of malicious damage to utilities and other works located on national forest land or on private land within the forest boundaries, which are important in connection with national defense.

Supervisor Ellis states he wishes to make it clear to the public that only a few small areas in the immediate vicinity of the power houses, dams, penstokes, transmission lines and other vital parts are closed to the general public, hunters, recreationists or fishermen. He said the closed areas will be posted so that there will be no danger of trespass. Ellis believes the public will cooperate in observing this regulation as they do in assisting to preserve their natural forest resources from fire and other damage.

AIR FREIGHT SHIPS FORECAST AT WAR'S END

By DAVID N. JOHNSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

SACRAMENTO Aug. 11.—(UP)—Rapid growth of a nationwide network of air freight service with the major airlines operating a single pool of cargo ships following the war was predicted today by W. A. Patterson, president of United Airlines.

Patterson said in an interview that airlines already are planning an air freight corporation with planes to be owned jointly and finances to be handled on a proportionate sharing basis in order to eliminate freight transfers at division points.

Freight hauls, he said, would be handled by airlines where there would be an advantage in speed over a long haul instead of short hauls where surface transportation would be adequate.

Patterson was in Sacramento to confer with local United Airlines employes, civic and military officials.

Patterson said that he does not believe that advances in design brought about by mass military production of large bombers will be of special benefit to commercial aviation. "Military design," he said "emphasizes maneuverability at high speed. Commercoal design calls for safety and maneuverability at low speed under all conditions.

Patterson declared that perhaps the principal benefit to be derived by commercial aviation from military production will be mass technique in the production of conventional types.

However, he did not anticipate any great slack in airplane manufacture of military types following the war. "We will be a military nation as to airplanes through the next generation," he said.

In private flying, he anticipated a growth of production in airplane growth of production following this war comparable to the growth of production in automobiles after the last war. Pilots, he added, will have increased in like proportion.

There also will be, Patterson said a drop in prices of both air transportation and purchase figures on private planes of the light type. "But" he said, "the airplane is limited in use to a certain extent because it lacks flexibility of surface transportation."

Patterson said there had been no further report on the company's application to the civil aeronautics board for extension of feeder service through the San Joaquin Valley, touching at Visalia, Merced, Modesto, and Stockton. Extension of service to Chico, he said was denied.

that we cannot now afford a kindergarten, and we have every confidence in the board's judgment. We have to remember that they serve in an arduous post without pay, except for the honor that their fellow citizens have accorded them, and that they come to their decisions solely with the desire to discharge their duties honorably. Most of those on the board have children in the schools of their own, and their decisions will naturally be biased in favor of offering in the schools all those facilities which they believe will help to develop good and useful citizens.

There will come a day when a kindergarten will be established in Nevada City. The three and four-year-olds of today will then be in elementary school, perhaps. A considerable number of mothers no doubt, are disappointed that their children are deprived of a kindergarten now. But if the school board considering the proposal in its many aspects, decides that we should first pay off some of the present school indebtedness, instead of plunging deeper into debt, the long view, and the philosophical view should be cheerfully accepted. After all this community is only a family greatly expanded, and all decent, self-respecting families, when in debt, struggle to reduce their debts rather than add to them.

"TRAILER VAGABOND"

By WARREN BAYLEY

This feature appears through the courtesy of O. K. Tire Weld Co. G. R. (Red) Jarrard, Hills Flat, Grass Valley, California.

Macleod, Alberta, Canada.

The Mounties don't always get their man. There is a murder case right here in Macleod that has remained unsolved since 1903.

But instead of a blot on the excellent record of the Royal North West Mounted Police, it stands a monumeent to the tireless efforts of this fine group of men. The "Belly Butte" murder launched the most minute and thorough investigation in the annals of the Force, covering the Province of Alberta and nine of our States and leading northward to the Arctic and east to Germany. Such a case might well have remained a mystery to our own famed G-Men.

Created in 1873 as a mobile police force of 30 men, the main purpose of the Mounties was to cope with the Indian situation of the time. They also saved Canada from the lawlessness that prevailed in the mining-camps of the U. S. during that era.

Today, with little more than a thousand men, it polices an area equal to the U. S. in size—manning 113 posts in all seven provinces of Canada, two Territories and the islands of the Arctic Archipelago.

Chief of the organization between 1876 and 1880, Commissioner J. F. Macleod founded a fort here bearing his name. A diplomat as well as a frontier policeman, Macleod was largely responsible for negotiating the Indian treaties that gave Canada a huge slice of western territory.

Things have changed since then. Alberta has become a Province. The fort has blossomed into a pleasant little town of 1500—the oldest in southern Alberta— and instead of training rookies in red coats for the Force, the main concern here now is the training of Australian fliers for the war over yonder. Surrounding prairies that used to resound to the thunder of mounted recruits now throb with the roar of planes.

The rapid spread of the fame of the Mounties was due to Sitting Bull, the Indian Chief who was responsible for Custer's Massacre. Front-page news throughout the world after that historic battle with American troops. Sitting Bull and his tribe fled to Canada, where the mounted police—outnumbered a thousand to one—were faced with the problem of keeping those fierce savages subdued. Accounts of how they succeeded, generally through bluff alone brought world wide fame to the Force.

Twenty years ago, with the name "Canadian" supplanting "North West," because of a broadened scope of jurisdiction, the Force was nearly disbanded in an economic and political upheaval. Fortunately for law and order, the movement failed.

Instead of keeping hostile Indians in line, the Mounties now perform duties ranging from adventurous suppression of smuggling and couterfeiting to the dull investigation of income tax returns and unlicensed radio sets. But they still cut dashing figures and maintain the spirit of old.

Whatever the job at hand may be, and in spite of this unsolved case here in Macleod the Royal Canadian Mounted Police continue to chalk up a record of infallibility that makes them one of the most respected law enforcement organizations in the world.

Nothing more animates the soul on washday than to have clothes come out of the wash looking cleaner than new because they are clean clear through. It takes hot suds and plenty of uniformly hot water to do this. Hot water stimulates the cleansing action of soap and makes it work faster. Hot water chases out the soap when its job is done, to make clothes clean in every fibre.

If your water heater is one you must tend to with a match or has been bothersome or too small for your family needs, by all means put in a big new Gas Automatic. These new Automatics heat water faster, use less fuel, are attractive in appearance and the tanks are scientifically insulated. Your home should have modern, on-tap hot water service. You can afford it. Just a few dollars a month for a few months pays for an Automatic Gas Water Heater.
